A High-Tech City Council? Well, So Far ... Not Exactly

by Diane Oberg

What equipment should Greenbelt provide to its councilmembers to help them stay in touch with each other and with their constituents? That question was discussed during a March 28 city council worksession. The apparent consensus: a computer, possibly a printer, a fax machine or a scanner, and an e-mail address. Councilmembers are unlikely to get cell phones, voice mail or beepers.

The equipment would remain the property of the city; it would have to be returned when the councilmember left office. In addition, the equipment will be provided only in response to a councilmember's request — the city would not issue it automatically. All current councilmembers have computers, although Mayor Judith Davis is still learning to use hers ("It's out of the box now.") and Councilmember Rodney Roberts made no bones about not being a computer geek ("The only thing I'd do with a laptop is maybe drop it off a bridge somewhere.")

How Accessible?

Clearly councilmembers felt they were already quite accessible to constituents. One of the "technology options" offered by David Moran, assistant to the city manager, was a beeper. The councilmembers appeared unanimous in their desire not to be beeped.

Four councilmembers thought that having a city e-mail address was a good idea. Davis and Councilmember Alan Turnbull already have e-mail addresses posted on the city's web-site (www.ci.greenbelt.md.us). Councilmember Edward Putens liked the idea of councilmembers' having an e-mail address @ci.greenbelt.md.us, finding it more professional than, for example, hotmail.com. Turnbull did not want the city's somewhat awkward address, preferring his easy to remember Turnbull@greenbelt.com. So long as the addresses are posted on the web site, whether a councilmember uses the city's address or a private one is irrelevant, he said.

Roberts did not want e-mail. "I don't have time to check e-mail every day," he said. He did not see any real benefit, saying that no one has ever complained about his being hard to reach.

After some discussion, on similar grounds, council ended up turning down voice mail on the city's phone number — in practice it would be more trouble than it's worth. While this would provide citizens with the ability to leave more detailed messages and to call at any time, councilmembers would have to remember to call in and retrieve their messages every day, and to change their outgoing messages when they were going to be out of town. "It's one more thing I'd have to do," Davis said; "I don't want it."

The only friction in the discussion came between Roberts and Turnbull. Turnbull viewed e-mail as essential for councilmembers: it's now almost unacceptable not to be able to send and receive e-mail. (Editor's note: Even the News Review, which didn't give up its manual typewriters until 1995, has an e-mail address: newsreview@greenbelt.com.) Later Turnbull said that while councilmembers should not be required to have computers, council should develop a culture where those who don't use computers feel disadvantaged and unable to communicate as easily as

Council Turns Thumbs Down To Curfew; then Honors Police

by Betsy Likowski

The Greenbelt City Council decided not to impose a youth curfew in Greenbelt. The decision was made at the regular council meeting on Monday, March 26.

Mayor Judith Davis said that the city does not have the resources to uniformly enforce a curfew. In recent meetings council has deemed a curfew unnecessary, said Councilmember Thomas White.

Also at the meeting recipients of police department awards were honored and housekeeping matters were attended to such as deciding to resurface streets in Lakewood and looking into the acquisition of a sliver of land that may have historical significance.

Awards

Recipients of Police Officer of the Year and Civilian Employee of the Year Awards were honored at the city council meeting. Master Patrol Officer John Michael Dewey was recognized for his efforts to save an assault victim.

On the night of September 19 a man was attacked while walking with his wife from the Greenbelt Metro station. Dewey, the first police officer to arrive, used his training as an emergency medical technician to help the man, and called for assistance. Although the victim died from his injuries, Dewey's assistance gave the crime victim a chance of surviving he would not have had and his surviving as long as he did enabled other officers to get information needed to apprehend the suspects, according to the citation.

Jocelyn Curley, a 15-year employee of the police department, was recognized as Civilian Employee of the Year. She developed the department's domestic violence policy. Part of her work is the donate-a-phone campaign. Donated cellular phones are given to domestic violence victims or those who have been stalked, to use in case they need to call for help.

Council voted to approve a bid to resurface all the streets in Lakewood except Greenhill Road, which is being studied to see if traffic calming measures should be installed. VMP Construction Company will do the work for $109,245.

Miscellaneous

The state has declared a small sliver of land between the Beltway and Capital Cadillac surplus property. Council directed city staff to look into the possibility of acquiring it. Councilmember Rodney Roberts said the foundations of Toaping Castle, a colonial homestead dating back to 1757, were located on the property.

The purchase of a 15-passenger van for $21,499 was approved by council for use by the Recreation Department.

Council approved replacement of the fuel dispensing system for city vehicles for $12,530 from Tate Engineering of Baltimore. There are fueling stations at the police station and the public works department compound for use by the vehicles of those and other city departments.

The Four Cities Coalition, which consists of Greenbelt, Berwyn Heights, College Park, and New Carrollton, won the Maryland Municipal Leagues' 18th annual Award for Excellence. The award was given for purchasing a street sweeper together. City Manager Michael McLaughlin said he considered this one of the highest awards a city can receive.

Kevin Hammett was reappointed to the Community Relations Advisory Board and Earl Taylor was appointed to the Advisory Planning Board.

April's Artful Afternoon Featured Clown, Art, Music

by Jenn Crowell

On Sunday, April 1, Greenbelters found the perfect antidote to a drizzly day in the Community Center. From noon to 5 p.m., they were treated to one of the city's monthly Artful Afternoons. This afternoon prominently featured the art of Jill Romanoke, whose highly-organic and playful selection of found objects and branch sculptures delighted and intrigued, evoking "the mystery of nature," as Romanoke herself put it. Greenbelters had the opportunity to view not only Romanoke's gallery exhibit, but also a vine sculpture created by area children in a workshop given earlier by the artist.

The day continued with a performance poetry/dance piece by poet Ron Wray and dancer Gaye Meyer and company. An excerpt from Wray's longer work, "Americans," the innovative collaboration highlighted the work and life of Emily Dickinson. Drawing upon original poetry, historical quotations, Dickinson's poems, and even her recipes, the performance melded word and movement in a touching and thought-provoking fashion.

After such an introspective, delicate mood, it was time for pure, raucous fun with the inauguration of Greenbelt's first-ever Clown Laureate, Adam Gertsacov. To much fanfare and donning of clown nose by Mayor Judith Davis, Gertsacov received a proclamation and the official "Green Belt" of the city, only to dash away merrily.

Following his appearance, the Greenbelt Concert Band finished the afternoon with a solid hour of various tunes, ranging from Eastern European to Latin flair. In all, the day showcased the diversity of and commitment to the arts in the city of Greenbelt.

Local Artists to Exhibit In Arts Council Show

by Dorothy Sucher

"We have a stunning array of programming in the visual arts in Greenbelt," said Nicole DeWald, Greenbelt's Arts Coordinator, recently. "The amount of activity in the arts here is very substantial for the size of our population, compared to other communities in the county."

The liveliness of Greenbelt's art scene will be celebrated at a comprehensive exhibit by Greenbelt artists now being planned jointly by DeWald, of the Greenbelt Recreation Department, and the Prince George's County Arts Council. The show will feature approximately 100 works by Greenbelt artists.

City-County Cooperation

"The Prince George's Arts Council has had a wonderful record of generosity to Greenbelt artists," stated DeWald. "The county has provided grant support to individual artists, and served as a resource by introducing us to outside artists who have come into Greenbelt to exhibit their work or perform." The Arts Council has a new director, Susan Slattery, and the show will serve to introduce her to the Greenbelt art community.

Participation will be invited by the Greenbelt Recreation Department from the following groups: Artists in Residence, Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts (GAVA), Greenbelt schools, artists who have exhibited in Greenbelt within the past year, and arts clubs. In addition, 20 works of art will be selected to represent the community at large — that is, artists not affiliated with any group.

"This is a very complex way of managing a show," DeWald stated. "We are really making an effort to reach out into the community. The Recreation Department wants to recognize the work of both art groups and artists who work privately. We appreciate the contribution they make. The artists who are among us in our daily lives set a

Chautauqua Event At Springhill Lake

by Sandra Lange

Everyone is invited to participate in the city's Chautauqua series. The next Chautauqua event is on Saturday, April 21, at 2 p.m. at Springhill Lake Recreation Center. It will explore some of the interesting history of the Springhill Lake area. For example, did you know that the land that is now Springhill Lake was originally inhabited by Native Americans about 2 1/2 centuries before Greenbelt was a glimmer in Rexford Tugwell's eye?

The first white settlers who came to the area in the mid 1600s were merchants who established what was called the Friendship Plantation. Although no homes were built then, the merchants may have hunted beaver or traded with the Indians. Many of Greenbelt's pioneer children talk about the fun of collecting arrowheads at Indian Springs and other areas around Springhill Lake. The Greenbelt Museum is co-sponsoring the Springhill Lake event.

ERHS Hosts Game Show for the Deaf

In an effort to reach the half million Marylanders who are deaf, deaf/blind, hard-of-hearing or speech-disabled, Maryland Relay is bringing its show to Eleanor Roosevelt High School auditorium on April 14 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. to find out who wants to "Feel Like A Relay Millionaire." Modeled after the successful game show, the Relay's own Regis Philbin-ish host will quiz contestants about the services provided through Maryland Relay.

"Maryland Relay is an interactive telecommunications system that enables those who are deaf, deaf/blind, hard of hearing or speech disabled to communicate using text telephones (TTY) through specially trained operators," says Gilbert Becker, director of Maryland Relay.

The Relay may be accessed from any phone, and there are no set-up fees or costs per local call. For more information about "Feel Like A Relay Millionaire" shows, call 1-800-552-7724 TTY/V or visit: www.mdrelay.org.

"Avalon" Featured Movie of the Month

The movie of the month will be the film "Avalon," which will be shown on Monday, April 9 at 1 p.m. in the senior classroom of the Community Center. The film stars Joan Plowright, Lou Jacobi and Elizabeth Perkins.

"Avalon" is a story by writer/director Barry Levinson about an immigrant's life and times in a Baltimore that has disappeared, chronicling the changes the years brought to his family.

This is the third of Levinson's chronicles about Baltimore following "Diner" and "Tin Men."

City Notes

The week of March 26 the streets crew cleaned the back yard at Public Works to make room for temporary storage for the contractor who will be installing the red light cameras, and also for the contractor who is beginning installation of a fence. They also assisted the Police Department by spreading sand after an accident on Hanover Parkway.

The horticulture crew pruned roses in the garden at the Community Center and installed 11 azaleas and four hydrangeas, and diagnosed the shrub problem at the Greenbelt Museum — voles are eating the roots. The crew also assisted Pepco in removal of dead branches near overhead wires.

The parks crew moved a slide at the 15 Court of Laurel Hill to bring it into ADA compliance and installed a new ladder and hand rail on it. They also began work on the slide at Springhill Lake. It will be completed when the weather improves.

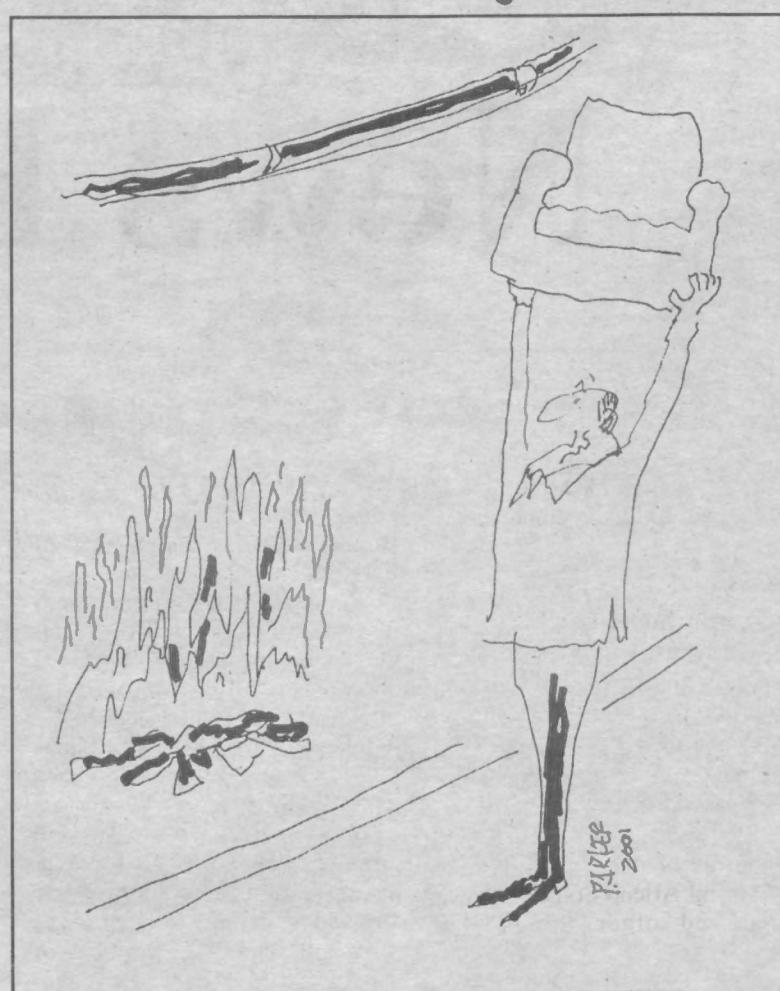

Paper Planes Will Soar at Museum

When visiting the College Park Aviation Museum between April 9 and 13, be sure to try making a paper airplane. Silver Award Given City for Bay Efforts Greenbelt will be presented with a Silver Award by the Chesapeake Bay Program at the City Council meeting on April 23. The award recognizes Greenbelt as a Chesapeake Bay Partner Community for its efforts to protect the bay and its rivers and streams. The city will receive a road sign for display in the community.

The city has an ongoing program to conserve and protect natural resources that have an impact on the bay. These include preventing pollution, safeguarding trees and forests, and encouraging community participation. Many of the city's efforts have been concentrated on Greenbelt Lake, such as forebay dredging, streambank stabilization, and the Earth Day community planting project. The city has also developed a water quality educational brochure advising residents on how they can play a role in protecting the waterways.

City of Greenbelt COMMUNITY MEDIATION BOARD

The City of Greenbelt has re-established a Community Mediation Board under the auspices of the Prince George's County Human Relations Commission. This Board is comprised of city residents who have volunteered to receive mediation training and be available to mediate disputes between neighbors.

Mediation consists of a step by step problem solving process that results in the involved parties agreeing on a fair solution. Mediation serves as an alternative to litigation and brings both parties to the table on an equal basis. A mediator does not act as an advocate of either party. He/she reserves judgment and does not voice opinion.

Types of problems mediated may be noisy neighbors, barking dogs, trespassing children, blocked driveways, family feuds, littering, loitering, neighboring property neglect, small claims matters, etc.

Mediation services will be available at the Greenbelt Community Center on the second Tuesday and fourth Wednesday of each month. Any Greenbelt citizen who wishes to make use of this free service should call the Human Resources Officer, City of Greenbelt, 301-345-7203.

Phyllis Budin, Pearl Siegel, Arlene and Bill Souser knit and crochet items for a home for battered women. In the past, Betty Down, Alberta Tompkins, and Vita Pergola participated and won medals in the Senior Olympics, and Nick Pergola took the pictures.

Phyllis Budin from the travel committee announced a trip to National Geographic with lunch on one's own at Scholls. A trip is planned on June 26 to Hillwood. See the travel committee at the next meeting to sign up.

Ernie Varda, membership chair, welcomed new member Hazel Travers.

New Deal Board Elects Officers

The New Deal Café (NDC) Board of Directors met on March 25. The meeting was chaired by Board Secretary Wendy Turnbull. Attending the meeting were Margarita Mandry, treasurer, Earl Kepler, Kim Callinan Taylor, membership, and Terri Rutledge, manager.

The meeting began with the appointment of Taylor to the Board, and the resignation of Earl Kepler.

The directors and manager discussed asking local organizations for contributions, buying a dishwasher, filling vacancies on the board, and mailing the annual report to New Deal Café members. Mailing of the report has been delayed due to a conflict between the report and the bylaws. The report suggested that membership dues be given annually rather than once as defined in the bylaws.

The next meeting will be on Sunday, April 8 at 8:30 p.m. at the New Deal Café. Board meetings are usually held every other week. The annual meeting will be held in June.

Hearing Aids Subject Of SHHH Meeting

The next meeting of the Prince George's County Group, Self Help for Hard of Hearing People (SHHH), will be Thursday, April 12, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center.

This program is especially for those whose spouse has "suggested" they might need a hearing aid because the TV is turned up too high, or those who frequently ask a speaker to repeat information or who just "tune out" and ask later what the speaker said.

This program is an opportunity to ask questions about a hearing test to identify the loss, find out what type of aid might be best for that particular loss and meet financial needs as well. The presenter at the Thursday, April 12 meeting is to be Audiologist Gwyneth Newcomb, from Bowie Hearing Center. Newcomb will describe the three types of aids: analog, programmable/analog and programmable/digital and which type is appropriate for which degree of loss. Other questions relating to implants and assistive listening devices are welcome.

For further information or directions call 301-474-0345.

OBITUARIES

Eva Love

Eva Love, 82, former resident of Boxwood Village, died on March 27, 2001.

Mrs. Love was born in Philadelphia, raised in Portland, Oregon, and came to Washington in 1941 seeking civil service employment. She met and married her husband Maurice that same year. They lived in Washington and moved to Norfolk, Va., when he was in the Navy. After the war, they lived in Washington, where they opened their hardware store in the Northeast section of the city. After the birth of their children, they moved to Landover, where they lived until moving to Boxwood Village in 1983.

Eva had a lifelong interest in politics. She was an active member of the League of Women Voters in the early years of her marriage, and of the Eleanor & Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club upon moving to Greenbelt. One usually found Eva and Maurice distributing campaign literature during elections in Greenbelt.

The Loves were also active in a number of senior organizations, among them the Golden Age Club. Mrs. Love, who had been hard of hearing since being stricken with diphtheria in childhood, was also an active member of SHHH (Self-Help for the Hard of Hearing).

After Mrs. Love suffered a stroke in 1998, the Loves moved to Asbury Methodist Village in Gaithersburg, where Eva lived until her death.

Mrs. Love is survived by her husband Maurice Love, of Asbury Methodist Village, Gaithersburg; daughter Susan, of Boxwood Village; son Paul of Rockville; grandchildren Caryn Hutson and Kenneth Reitzig; and great-granddaughters Hayley and Madison Hutson.

She was buried at King David Memorial Gardens in Falls Church, Va., on March 29.

Memorial contributions may be made to SHHH General Support Fund, 7910 Woodmont Ave., Suite 1200, Bethesda, MD 20814.

Barbara Drake

Barbara Anna Drake died Friday, March 23, 2001. She was 90 years old and had lived in Greenbelt since 1953.

Mrs. Drake was born in Washington, D.C. Her family, the Meiningers, came from Germany in the 1800's. Most of the family were born in Washington, D.C.

She was one of the original founders of Greenbelt Baptist Church where she taught Sunday School and Bible School for many years. She was a member of the "Young at Heart" group at the Church and was also a member of American Legion, Post 136 Auxiliary. In November, 2000, family, friends, neighbors, and fellow church members helped her celebrate her 90th birthday.

Primarily a homemaker, Mrs. Drake had worked at the Greenbelt Junior High School cafeteria where she was affectionately known as the "Ice Cream Lady."

She loved clowns and had a beautiful collection of ceramic and porcelain clown dolls.

She is survived by her three children, sons Weldon, Jr. and James, and daughter Bonnie Boisvert; six grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

A memorial service was held Tuesday, March 27 at Greenbelt Baptist Church. Interment was at Ft. Lincoln Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to Greenbelt Baptist Church, 101 Greenhill Rd., Greenbelt, MD 20770.

A Review Spring Songs

by Nick Mydra

It was billed as "An Evening of Song." Last Saturday night, the Greenbelt Arts Center presented the husband and wife duo of Ole Hass and Ingrid Cowan in music. Vocal, that is. The music ranged from 17th century Purcell to 20th century Hoiby. Ingrid, a mezzo soprano and Ole, a tenor, were accompanied by Susan Slingland on the piano. An intimate audience had the chance to hear the duo both as soloists and as a duet. Slingland played the Arts Center's up-right grand piano. It is a totally refurbished piano made in the beginning of the 20th century, or as Konrad Herling described it in his introduction, "the piano was made the same year my father, Al Herling, was born." I'll let you do the math.

Ingrid began the program with songs by Henry Purcell. Following the opening number, Ole Hass took center stage and performed six parts of a piece by Robert Schumann from "Liederkreis, opus 39." After that Ingrid Cowan came back to perform five popular Greek melodies by Maurice Ravel. In the program it was called "Cinq Melodies populaires Grecques." The opening "Le Reviel de la mariee" had Slingland trying to turn the pages of the music while following the lead Cowan. Fingers flying, pages flying, she didn't miss a note. Nice job. The third part, "Quel galant" was extremely short, then it was over.

Camille Saint-Saens and Gabriel Faure brought the enrapt audience to intermission. Ingrid and Ole sang a duet. The Faure "Pleurs d'or" had the duo doing the echo effect, where one would sing a passage and the other would do the same just like an echo. After a short pause Ingrid Cowan began the second half with a collection of German-titled pieces by Gustave Mahler, Joseph Marx, and Hugo Wolf. Ole Hass then sang six pieces by Lee Hoiby and John Duke. "Penguin Geometry" by Duke was very humorous. Ingrid and Ole returned to center stage to finish the evening singing a duet by George Gershwin. The appreciative audience gave them a nice round of applause to end the concert.

Ingrid had a nice presence about her. She seemed more animated at times than Ole and used her eyes and face to express herself. This is my first time hearing either one of them. Ingrid's mezzo voice worked well with all the music she sang. Being expressive helped to sell the songs. Ole, who is originally from Hamburg, Germany, didn't seem as responsive at times. It was especially evident on the duets. He didn't give the feeling of being lovers, or husband and wife. No

Community Website Is Now up to Date

After a seven-month leave of absence, Neil McLeod recently returned to volunteer duty as Community Webmaster on behalf of Greenbelt.com, the Internet service provider run by the Greenbelt Internet Access Cooperative. Stale portions of the Greenbelt Community Website have now been updated.

Fred and Ginger, or Nelson and Jeanette. But to his credit, he has nice poise and good vocalization. I did notice that on the Schumann "Waldesgesprach" and "Mondnacht," as well as the "Jabberwocky" by Hoiby that he had reached the limits of his upper register.

All and all it was a nice evening, entertained by two local residents who I hope will grace the stage of the Arts Center, or any area stage for that matter, whenever they can.

their colleagues. Roberts took exception to this statement, commenting that Turnbull was trying to say that councilmembers are not doing their jobs if they do not use computers.

More Cable

Council liked the idea, and the relatively low cost (about $4,500 per year), of cablecasting council worksessions, in addition to regular meetings. Regular meetings, said Turnbull, are sometimes almost pro forma, the real work is done at worksessions. Davis wondered how many people actually watch council meetings (Putens commenting that he knew a couple of people who are regular viewers). In response, City Manager Michael McLaughlin agreed to put a question on this year's election questionnaire.

Despite all the talk of technology, this year's city council election, Moran said, will again feature the decidedly low-tech pull-lever voting machines city voters have come to know so well.

Budget Impact

The total cost of the technology options likely to be adopted is relatively low. The most expensive component would be providing each councilmember with a computer. If all five requested one, the total purchase cost would be roughly $10,000 for laptops or $7,500 for desktop machines. However, unless five new, computerless councilmembers are elected in November, the cost will be much less. Five fax machines, if requested, would run about $1,000 by Moran's rough estimate. No other item topped $1,000. Annual operating costs (such as maintenance contracts, paper, ink cartridges, etc.) are also expected to be small.

Council rejected the most expensive items mentioned by Moran, including built-in equipment for the council room to display computer-generated slide presentations (estimated cost $10,000), live webcasting of council meetings (about $25,000), and electronic agenda packets containing all documents currently provided to council (estimated cost $30,000). (Editor's Note: does anyone know where we can find a hacker, just in case?)

Open Issues

Council briefly touched on whether they need to take steps to prevent abuse of city-owned equipment, such as internet surfing through porn sites, but reached no decisions. And, since e-mail will facilitate communication among the councilmembers, there may be possible public access issues. While Turnbull mentioned that all council e-mails would be a matter of public record, there was no discussion about how requests to review the messages would be accommodated or how messages would be preserved.

tone for the community as a whole, artists and non-artists alike. They help us reflect on what is, and envision what might be."

How to Apply

Both adults and children may submit their work for consideration. It should be dropped off at the Greenbelt Community Center on Wednesday, April 18, between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Selection will be made on the following day. All artwork, whether selected or not, must be picked up between 4 p.m. on Thursday, April 19, and 9 p.m. on Saturday, April 22.

All work must be neatly and securely framed (no clip frames), and ready to hang from hooks and wire along a picture rail. Pedestal sculptures and free-standing sculpture cannot be accommodated. At the time of delivery, artists will be asked to complete paperwork for the purposes of insurance and publicity.

Location

The show will be held in Hyattsville, in the Prince George's Metro Center at 6525 Belcrest Road, across the street from Prince George's Plaza. Space will be provided by the Prince George's Arts Council, whose offices are nearby.

Rachel & Jaqui, Tinsmith In Benefit Concert for Café

by Dorothy Sucher

Friday the Thirteenth will be a lucky day for the New Deal Café. At least, that's what the folks who run the place are hoping. Why? Because Friday, April 13, is the date of the latest concert in an ongoing series to benefit the embattled co-op eatery and music venue in Greenbelt's Roosevelt Center. The café is threatened with closing because of accumulated debts.

Patrons will be entertained by two popular groups, the WAMMIE-winning folk duo Rachel & Jaqui, and the progressive Celtic trio Tinsmith. There promises to be a good crowd, since both groups have a Greenbelt following.

Rachel & Jaqui

The duo of Rachel and Jaqui have been playing together for almost 12 years, ever since they met in Paris. Over the years they have grown together musically and now project a high-energy, acoustic World Beat contemporary sound that has won them raves, as well as several prestigious WAMMIE awards. Most of their songs are originals, with themes ranging from love to social consciousness and spirituality. Rachel is the lead singer and plays guitar, while Jaqui sings backup and plays the drum and other instruments.

"We try to uplift people," said Jaqui MacMillan. "And we love to play at the New Deal Café. It's such a great mix of everyone in the community—all ages, families with kids, young people hanging out with their friends. It's a healthy environment, smoke-free and alcohol-free."

According to Richard McMullin, the New Deal's music director, "Rachel and Jaqui always transform our café into a little village, with everyone participating in the joy of the music."

And David Eisner, owner of the House of Musical Traditions in Takoma Park, stated, "Two sirens of strings and skins, these women belt out the beat with vocal bravado!"

Tinsmith

The Tinsmith trio of Greenbelters plays traditional Celtic folk music "which we massacre in a variety of ways—rockabilly, Wallflower-style, and post-modern," according to drummer/guitarist John McLoughlin, the group's spokesman or, as he likes to refer to himself, "official mascot."

The group has been playing together for six years, ever since they "hooked up in Atlanta and gave birth to — this," McLoughlin continued. "We started playing straight Irish folk music but then we got bored and our backgrounds started creeping in."

Rhythm player Rowan Corbett's background had been in jazz and rhythm-and-blues, and Brooke McLoughlin was a "folkie." As for John McLoughlin: "My background was Frank Zappa meets Ozzie Osborne."

The group likes playing at the New Deal Café. "It's such a neat venue, where nationally-known groups come and play for free," said McLoughlin. "And the co-op idea appeals to our social conscience. To make music is a wonderful thing." Waxing philosophical, the "mascot" concluded: "There are three important things in life: to be at peace, to know, and to serve. For us, playing this benefit is service."

Tinsmith and Rachel & Jaqui will be doing their wonderful thing at the New Deal Café, 113 Centerway, on Friday, April 13 at 8 p.m. Since this is a benefit performance, there will be a cover charge.

A Greenbelt Gardener

by Rosie Rhubarb

Spring has arrived and it is so good to see the bright yellow daffodils and forsythia in bloom around the city. To my mind the bright yellow color is just the best symbol of the returning pleasant weather.

The yellow forsythia shrubs make a great accent in a yard or a wonderful display as a hedge. Though looking weather-beaten this spring, the hedge of forsythia next to the Giant supermarket on Cherrywood Lane is a good example of a hedge of this plant.

This is the height of the season for daffodils. Many yards have a small number. There are several fine displays around the city, such as on Crescent Road across from the lake park and on Kenilworth Avenue between Ivy and Cherrywood Lanes. Also there is a magnificent display of miniature daffodils all along Southway.

These are low-maintenance plants that provide color year after year. Consider planting some next autumn when the bulbs are available for purchase.

A more subtle change is also underway as leaves begin to peek out of leaf buds on many plants. And spring flowering shrubs are getting ready to bloom.

This is the beginning of the spring gardening season. Perennial flowers that bloom year after year can be planted in the next weeks. Soil can be prepared for planting when it is not muddy.

Liriope

To my mind one of the best plants to use as edging or as a groundcover is liriope. This is a plant seen all over, especially used by professional landscapers, but it does not call attention to itself. Each plant looks like the house plant nicknamed spider plant, or like a clump of tall grass. The leaves come up out of a central place - arching up and over. They are less than a foot tall. It has almost no problems with pests. And the only maintenance it needs is done this time of year. Any time now the new leaves will come up as a short little nub of green. Before the nub grows out, cut this year's leaves off on the plant so that when the nub expands into fresh green leaves they will be seen, not the older leaves battered by winter.

If not cut back soon

browning leaves will be there another year because once the new leaves come up it will be much harder to cut off old leaves. This is the easiest time of year to cut liriope leaves back and neaten up the look of the plant.

This is the only maintenance job that has to be done to an almost perfect plant that is hardy, reliable, and will grow in sun or shade. Some gardeners even skip this job, but this is not the year to do that. I have never seen so many browned liriope leaves.

I have heard that the early onset of cold weather, which happened in November if you remember, is the reason for all the browning. Those evergreen ground cover plants had a harder time getting moisture in the cold weather.

Plants all over the area have brown leaves, as do some ivy plants. So you really want to remove those unsightly leaves while you can. To cut back the leaves I will sit right down on the ground, grab all the old leaves of a plant with one hand and cut off with the other hand making a cut within an inch of the ground. An easier method, if the configuration of your planting allows, which mine, alas does not, is to use a lawn mower at the highest setting and mow over the plants. Remember - cut or mow before the new leaves come up or you will be taking off this year's leaves.

Greenbelt resident Ron Wilder informs the News Review that he will again participate in the June 21 AIDS benefit bike ride from Raleigh, N.C. to D.C. and is seeking sponsors to meet his goal of $10,000 in donations for the ride. Ron works for Food & Friends serving over 1,000 people a week. F&F delivers three meals a day, six days a week and "some of our clients do live in Greenbelt," says Ron. The organization receives a quarter of its budget through this source. For more information about sponsoring Ron or about the ride, call 202-293-7433.

Former Greenbelters Gary and Lisa Nelson Devlin, now residents of Bowie, welcomed a daughter into their family on March 11, 2001. Brianna Elizabeth, weighing 9 lbs., joins big brothers Griffith and Connor. Brianna is the granddaughter of longtime Greenbelter, the late Betty Devlin.

The Till Bergemann, M.D. Medical Ethics Lecture Series Presents:

Death and End-of-Life Issues in Maryland:
The Legal Rights for Those Dying and those Caring For Them

Prince George's Hospital Center Auditorium
FRIDAY, APRIL 20, 2001 - 12 noon to 2 pm

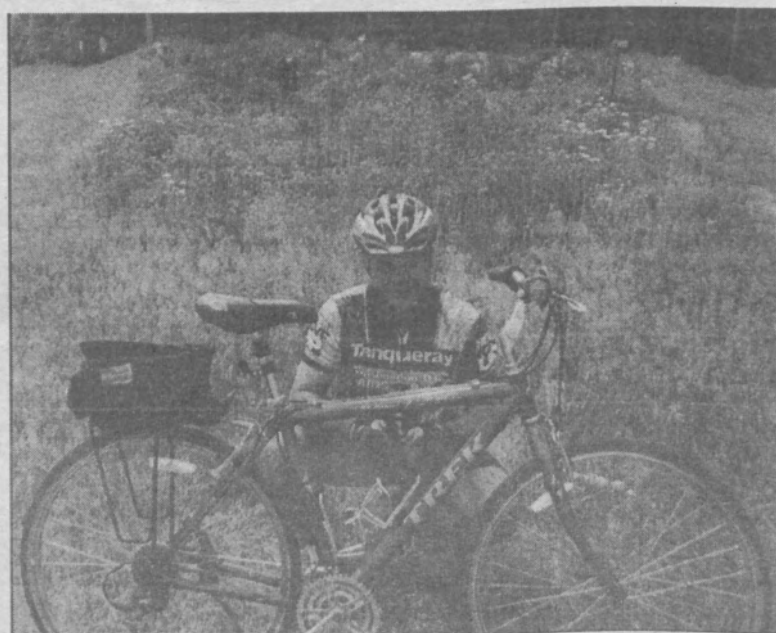

The Till Bergemann, M.D. Medical Ethics Lecture Series has been established in memory of Till Bergemann, a well-respected family practice physician in our community. Not only was Dr. Bergemann dedicated to the patients he served, but also to the study, practice, and enhancement of medical ethics. This annual lecture series will provide continuing education in the field of medical and healthcare ethics and is open to physicians, nurses, other health care professionals, clergy, social workers, risk management workers, and community members.

The speaker will be Martha Ann Knutson, J.D., who is the first Legal Compliance Officer of Upper Chesapeake Health (UCH). On a daily basis, she advises doctors, nurses, and other health care providers in the organization's hospitals and home health agency about the most effective way to navigate through the maze of federal and state laws and regulations surrounding end-of-life issues and other health care delivery matters. Ms. Knutson has taught at the Washington College of Law at American University and is frequently asked to speak at health care institutions and conferences about legal considerations in health care.

Continuing education credit will be provided by Prince George's Hospital and Medical Center to health care professionals.

A registration fee of $5 per person, payable at the door, includes a box lunch. Please call Prince George's Hospital Center's events line to reserve a seat and lunch at (301) 618-2636. Proceeds from this event will go to the Till Bergemann Memorial Fund of the Prince George's Hospital Foundation.

The hospital is at 3001 Hospital Drive, Cheverly, MD, 20785. The hospital is located off the Baltimore Washington Parkway at Route 202.
